History of CVAG

The Chula Vista Art Guild, Inc., a California non-profit organization, was formed in 1945 by one of the great “California Impressionists,” Alfred R. Mitchell with several of his students. Today, the Guild continues to be dedicated to the founders’ original vision of building an art society devoted to the service of cultural and artistic pursuits.

In keeping with that vision, the Chula Vista Art Guild’s programs, shows, and exhibitions are designed to reach the community at large by offering art education classes and workshops, critiques, social gatherings, and art demonstrations by professional artists. A members juried art show welcomes the public each spring and an annual art competition open to regional artists is sponsored by the Guild annually in the fall.

The Guild publishes a monthly newsletter and maintains a website with Member Galleries at www.chulavistaartguild.com.
